Take This Fire Safety Quiz

Every year 12,000 Americans are killed in fires and another 300,000 of them are injured. Yet, if questioned, few people take even the smallest measures to secure their families from this terrible threat. When a few simple precautions can mean the difference between life and death, are you willing to neglect them?

General Electric Company, manufacturer of the Home Sentry™ Smoke Alarm, suggests that you take the following test to determine how well protected your family is

- Do you conduct periodic home fire drills so that each member of the family knows at least two escape routes, and knows of a designated meeting place outside?
- Is your home equipped with smoke sensing alarms such as the new detectors that have recently come on to the market by companies such as General Electric? Are you aware that such devices sense the presence of even small amounts of smoke, at which time they sound a loud alarm?
- Do you sleep with bedroom doors closed? Did you know that in the event of a fire, you will gain precious

- minutes to escape if you do?
- Do you exercise extreme care with smoking materials and matches, major causes of destructive fires? Do you make sure that you never leave these where children can reach them?
- Do you periodically check your home for such fire hazards as old newspapers, cartons, old furniture, oily rags, etc?
- Do you exercise care in the use of electricity? Do you refrain from loading outlets with too many appliances, using inappropriate fuses, and hanging electrical cords over nails or running them under carpets?
- Do you make certain that any electrical appliance you purchase is U.L. listed? If you can answer "yes" to these questions, you're well on your way to a fire safe home.

"My Stanford Seed dealer helped me out so much last year, I'm early-ordering my NK corn from him again this year."

Last fall, when I heard the news from the midwest that supplies of seed corn were going to be short, I knew prices would start climbing. I asked my Stanford dealer about it, and he told me that the smartest thing for me to do was to order my NK corn early. He told me that the people at Stanford shared my concern about higher prices — and they did something about it. They authorized my dealer to give me price protection on my early NK order. That meant that if the price of seed corn went up, I would pay the lower early-order price. That sounded like more than a fair deal to me, so I ordered early. And you know what? The price went up later, saving me $2.50 a bag.

That's one of the reasons I'm going back to my Stanford-NK dealer now. Another reason is the big yield potential of Northrup-King hybrids. NK corn took more than 80 first-place NCGA state championships in the last six years.

To me, that's convincing proof that NK hybrids are exactly what we need to get those high-profit yields from our corn acreage.

My choice this year is NK's PX76 — the next great hybrid for my area. For two years, it has been the most consistent high yielder in NK trials across the mid-Atlantic region. You might need a mid-season corn on your farm, like PX 50A for grain or silage — or PX 20, an early corn with excellent standability, early spring vigor and fast dry-down.

On top of a high-yielding NK corn hybrid, the kind of help I need now is in straight cash savings. So I'm ordering my NK corn early again — this time to cash in on Stanford's big new early-order, early-pay discount deal.

I like doing business with people who are always there with the kind of help I can really use. That's why I'm staying with my Stanford dealer and NK corn.
