

4-H gal wins honor

Debra Miller, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Paul E. Miller of Great View Farm, RD4, Jinglestown was awarded a trophy for her grand champion cow, Vista Grande Duke Jewel, shown at the Dauphin Co. 4-H Show.

She also, was awarded a plaque for high milk and fat cow in the county. Her cow Great View Apollo Best finished with 20,738 lbs. milk and 687 lbs. fat in 305 days. Best freshened with a bull calf, Great - View Brahms Best, who is sold to Sire Power.

These awards were presented to Deb at the annual meeting of the Dauphin Co. Holstein Club held at the Lower Swatara Fire Hall on November 6th.

Deb also won Reserve Grand Champion honors with Apollo Best at the District 4-H Show and third at State 4-H Junior Dairy Show. She took Reserve Grand Champion honors in showing and fitting contest that same day.

This same year she was State Dairy Princess. In September she crowned the new State Princess, Charlene Maust of Somerset Co.

Ending her 4-H career, Deb expressed her thanks to the Dauphin Co. Agriculture Extension for the many opportunities available through 4-H Clubs. She feels the leadership training, citizenship, educational and many friendships gained will be an asset to her future. She also cited the Dauphin Co. Holstein Club for helping to support youth projects by awarding trophies for 4-H winners and recognizing the accomplishments of all 4-H youth.

A special attraction for the younger set visiting the Keystone International Livestock Exposition were the "Barnyard Babies." But the sign was misleading - there were a lot of baby animals around, but also some older ones, although small. This pony, for example, is a 14-year-old Shetland named "King," owned by Pam Bricker of Dillsburg.

The senior champion Angus bull at this year's Keystone Exposition was owned by William Warren of Furlong. Shown with the prize winning animal are Pennsylvania Angus Queen, Cheryl Ann Wojtowicz and Conrad Grove.

The Certified Service Award has been presented to Messick Farm Equipment, 2750 North Market Street, Elizabethtown. The presentation was made Thursday afternoon by John Lee, right, area service manager for International Harvester. Accepting the plaque for Messick's, which has been in business here for nearly 25 years, are Richard Witmer, left, service manager, and Bob Messick, manager.
