Fleming, who is also director of the Federation's Washington office, said repeated efforts by "left-wing political activists" to build a political coalition of farmers and labor union members "will continue to fail."

"The inherent weakness in any farmer-labor coalition was demonstrated this year when President George Meany of the AFL-CIO — aided and abetted by Secretary of Labor Dunlop — persuaded President Ford to place an embargo on U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union.

"This anti-farmer effort by the forces of labor played right into the hands of Secretary of State Kissinger, whose support for the cartelization of trade through international commodity agreements drew a sharp protect from the American Farm Bureau Federation Board of Directors long before the Soviet grain embargo was announced.

Farmers haven't forgotten that it was labor leaders who launched the campaign to have price controls on food imposed in 1973 — action which created such devastating dislocations in the livestock industry then and later.

"Those farm-state U.S. senators and representatives who in the past have sought to make common cause with lawmakers from union-dominated industrial states in an effort to win passage of government farm program bills have done — and are doing — a disservice to American agriculture," Fleming declared.

"They have jeopardized the income earning opportunities of American agriculture. Target prices and compensatory payments — the Brannan plan — do not provide a reliable basis for future agricultural income.

"Many urban members of Congress who voted for the farm bill in 1975 did so in an overt effort to get rural members of Congress obligated to vote for big-spending urban legislation.

"This was made crystal clear when the House of Representatives voted on the motion to override President Ford's veto of the 1975 farm bill.

"At that time, President Kuhfuss of the American Farm Bureau Federation told all of the House that the effort to override the veto was not prompted by concern for the welfare of agriculture.

"Instead," he said, "it was spearheaded by George Meany as an integral part of the AFL-CIO's budget-busting campaign to create a $100 billion deficit and thereby make a shambles of
