

Serving The Central and Southeastern Pennsylvania Areas

Vol. 21 No. 393'

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, August 14, 1976

$4.00 Per Year

In this issue

A special series on the weather begins this week on page 96.

Editorial Comments	10
Farm Calendar	10
Classifieds	30
Homestead Notes	50
My Thoughts	50
Ida's Notebook	52
Women's Calendar	53
Home on the Range	54
Junior Cooking Edition	56
Leb. Fair 62, 64	1, 88
Berks 4-H Fair	69
Berks 4-H Fair Adams Co. 4-H Round-up	69 70
	· · · ·
Adams Co. 4-H Round-up	70
Adams Co. 4-H Round-up What's New	70 80
Adams Co. 4-H Round-up What's New Allentown Fair	70 80 86
Adams Co. 4-H Round-up What's New Allentown Fair Weather Report	70 80 86 96
Adams Co. 4-H Round-up What's New Allentown Fair Weather Report Crafts feature	70 80 86 96 98

Pictured below are winners from the 4-H Achievement Days — Cindy Waltemyer, Montgomery County, high individual in dairy judging; Paul Myers, York County, high individual in vegetables; and Franklin County's Wayne Heilman, senior automotive contest winner.

The first set of twins was born at the Lebanon Fair this year. The novelty, which attracted young and old visitors alike, belonged to Elaine Maulfair, who is shown embracing the first-calf heifer who went through the ordeal without assistance at 2:30 a.m. on August 10. The dam is a daughter of Oak Ridge Flashy Classic and weighs approximately 1100 pounds, according to Dale Maulfair, left. Helping to hold the spry twins in place is Dale's wife, Pat, who remembers how difficult it was to get the dam to walk around for practice for the show. No wonder.

Pictured below ...

State 4-H Leader Lee Jinx presents the high individual award to Joyce Aument of Lancaster County, who along with Tom Trone from Adams County broke a 30-yearold record in poultry and egg judging at the 4-H Achievement Days this week.

In the lower picture is the state's high individual in archery, Brook Palmer. A York County girl, Miss Palmer competed against approximately 400 other boys and girls in the contest.

Achievers honored

UNIVERSITY PARK -Approximately 1500 young adults representing Pennsylvania's 100,000 4-H members convened on Penn State University's main campus, here, this week for the annual State 4-H Achievement Days. When it was all over. 4-H members counties within from LANCASTER FARMING'S prime coverage area had won ribbons and medals in a spirit of competition and fun which might be likened to the recently completed Olympiad. Individuals competed against each other and traditional county rivalries flourished.

A 30 year record was broken in poultry and egg judging; several counties had more than a couple of first or second place teams, 1200 in judging poultry and eggs.

eggs. In one 50 minute period each youngster made 1000 decisions judging 45 eggs on 10 characteristics each and 34 chickens on 20 characteristics each. In addition and winners were chosen to represent Pennsylvania's 4-H program in national competition.

Miss Joyce Aument, a 4-H member from Lancaster County and Tom Trone, a 4-H member from Adams County scored 1091 points out of a possible perfect score of each took a written examination and gave oral reasons under examination for their decisions made to a post graduate 4-H member, Pam Martin of Beaver County.

These youngsters made [Continued on Page 16]

Confidence visible

By DIETER KRIEG

MT. AETNA — There's no doubt that Don Landis, Berks County dairyman, has faith in the dairy business. He has some huge investments hanging in the balance.

It is said that life begins at 40, and in a way that statement carries a lot of truth in reference to Don Landis. His investments and rather unique ideas represent a new twist in his life. Wanting to make things easier for himself and his family, he took the big step to overhaul and modernize his business. Key considerations were efficiency, dependability, and practicality.

Located just off Route 501, north of this Berks County village, the Landis farm sits quietly within sight of majestic Blue Mountain. Its buildings and spacious lawns are reflected in a huge pond near the entrance to the homestead. Beyond is an old barn which dates back to 1900, and to the right of it is its modern counterpart a free-stall barn for 124 head, complete with automatic "doors" in the roof, pushbutton feeding system, and carousel milking parlor.

Landis has been farming his 122-acre home farm for more than 20 years and rents an additional 82 acres nearby. All told he grows 160 acres of alfalfa and 20 acres of corn. In spite of the sizable hay stands, however, he bales very little - no more than he needs for his youngstock. The blue silos take the bulk of the crop. All

[Continued on Page 15]

