A two-year-old exhibited by the Sandy River Farms, Farmington, Maine, was judged the grand champion bull 'Sandy River Marleen' was named reserve junior champion female

The premier sire award went to "Sunny View Princess Promise," an Australian bull, now deceased

The All-American Milking Shorthorn Show was judged by C Fred Forman, Ames, Iowa.

YORK - Sam Yoder's Milking Shorthorns just about made a clean sweep of things here at the York Fair last week during the Open Milking Shorthorn Show 'Pinesedge Farm,' owned by the Yoders of Shoemakersville, showed all the champions as well as the reserve champions of the breed and won all but two classes for individual and group competition

Jeff and Bret Ritter spoiled the Pinesedge Farm sweep by winning the senior calf class, while James Young did likewise by steering his aged cow to first place in the 5-year old dry cow category

The Yoder family has approximately 100 head of Milking Shorthorns at their Berks County farm and has acquired national recognition through them.

Two retire

NEW HOLLAND - Two employees with combined service of 59 years will retire from Sperry New Holland at the end of this month.

Harry L. Miller, 442 West Main St., New Holland, will retire as a production assembler. He began employment with the company in 1946 as an assembler and later became an assembler and tester mechanic.

Norman Hainley, Narvon Rd. 1, will retire after 29 years of service with the company.

A punch press operator, Hainley also worked as a material mover, grinder, angle former, bench hand and an abrasive cut-off machine operator.

Another report is that a report every year on an early research and marketing of new products. According to the Department of Commerce 90 percent of all new products fail within four years after their introduction.

Simply may not appeal to consumers or it may not have been adequately introduced to them. Flooding of the market with similar items and lack of interest contribute to the low survival rate.

Over the years they have had the grand champion bull twice, the grand champion cow once, and premier breeder and exhibitor several years at the national show.
