He also announced that Linda Kauffman, Elizabethtown R 1, is a finalist in the Distinguished Junior Member contest.

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Debra Kreider, Manheim R 5, spoke about her work in dairy promotion. She said that promotion is being carried out through the distribution of literature, and showed samples of the materials she uses.

She encouraged the dairymen to get involved in the milk promotion so that it can continue to expand as it has in the last year. She encouraged them to consider being either patrons ($1.00 per person, $2.00 per couple) or donors ($5.00) for the dairy princess coordinating committee. She told them it would be like investing in their own business. She concluded with a smile, "I guarantee you'll see results."

President and master of ceremonies Mel Eby presented Debra and alternate Dairy Princess Twila Brubaker with souvenir plates from the national Holstein convention in appreciation for their promotional work.

State director Robert Kauffman and Director of Special Programs Robert Morris both urged dairymen to participate in the state convention being held November 17-19, at West Middlesex, Pa. They also asked for support of the local junior association as it gets started. Kauffman announced that there are over 5,000 members in the state and just under 600 in Lancaster County. He encouraged members to renew their memberships early.

Program Director Mike Nolan discussed the programs of the national office and stressed the need for bull pedigrees at the state office. He said the national convention will be held next June 27-28 in Columbus Ohio, with Obie Snider, Pennsylvania director, being nominated for vice president of the national association.
