give maximum, efficient production. In extremely cold-weather automatic waterers that warm the water are suggested in order to increase water consumption. For the most profit on any kind of livestock, they should have all the water they can drink at all times.

TO BE CAREFUL WITH DRUGS AND ANTIBIOTICS

The use of drugs and medicines is necessary in many instances for good herd or flock health. However, the stated withdrawal times should be followed accurately. Every good producer should be making an effort at all times to produce a quality product, and not take chances on some Food and Drug Agent picking up the extra residue. The consumer today is very particular and cautious about drugs and chemicals in their food items. One mistake gets country-wide publicity and turns folks away from the food product. All producers must be very careful and use these materials according to instructions and label. Don't take chances; it could hurt your future, as well as other producers.

TO CHECK

INSURANCE COVERAGE
This is a repeat thought, but still very important to all property owners. Many insurance policies cover the original cost of the building but not the replacement costs. Most costs have increased immensely during the past decade and insurance coverage should also be increased. We are coming into the coldest part of the year when heating units and electricity will be in heavy use. Also, most animals and machinery are in or near buildings. Fires could be especially harmful under these conditions. We hope that no one has to rely on insurance to keep in business, but it can happen. We urge proper coverage to replace the structure at today's prices.
