Harold Bollinger named Outstanding Young Farmer

MYERSTOWN, Pa. -- Harold Bollinger of Willow Maple Farm, Newmanstown R1, was named the Outstanding Young Farmer of the ELCO Young-Adult Farmers Chapter at that group's second annual dinner-meeting held at the ELCO High School last Friday evening. This award is presented annually to the member who has done the most to promote the Young Farmer program.

Bollinger, who was a school board member when the Young Farmer program was first instituted in the school, has served on several committees and been instrumental in guiding the development of the ELCO program.

Other honors handed out at the banquet, which was attended by 100 Young Farmers and guests, included plaques recognizing participation in the statewide Summer tour.

Host farms receiving plaques were: Willow-Maple Farm run by Donald and Harold Bollinger; Fort Zeller Farm (run by Eugene and Sylvia Hoffman) Newmanstown R1, and Clyde and David Bowman, Myerstown R2.

Outgoing officers were also recognized. Malcolm Sonnen, Richland R1, last year's president; Fred Bohn, Myerstown R1, last year's vice president; Donald Bollinger, Newmanstown R1, former secretary; M. Luther Bennetch, Newmanstown R1, former treasurer, and Marlin Getz, Myerstown R2, former public relations director, all received awards.

Carlton Tucker, Myerstown, local chapter high school principal, was made an honorary Young Farmer during the meeting. The honorary awards presented each year to the non-member who has assisted in the development of the chapter. Tucker was presented the award because of his outstanding support of the adult education in agriculture. He assisted in writing the guidelines and policies that structure the program, and is currently serving on the advisory committee.

Ron Bower, ELCO Young Farmer advisor, presented the awards.
