Horse shots urged

ANNAPOLIS, Md. - Horse and pony owners are urged to vaccinate their animals against dread Equine Encephalitis ('Sleeping Sickness') now that mosquitos and other biting insects are taking to the air.

Dr. Hugh E. Binks, chief of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Animal Health Section, says effective vaccines are available but that they are effective for only one year, and thus, horses and ponies should be protected by a fresh vaccination for 1977. Combined killed-virus vaccines are now available for Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE) and Western Equine Encephalitis (WEE) which are known to occur in this area. The other form of Equine Encephalitis—Venezuelan (VEE) has not been diagnosed in the United States since 1971.

Horse owners are urged by Dr. Binks to contact their private veterinarian and make prompt arrangements to have their horse protected.
