HAM SOUP

1 cup cubed ham
1/2 cup cubed potatoes
Minced onion
1 cup fine noodles
2 cups milk
Brown ham, add onion (to suit taste), then add potatoes and noodles. Add water, sufficient to boil until tender. If picnic ham is used, add a little smoked salt for flavor, add milk and heat. Serve with crackers.

Ida's

Notebook

Ida Risser

Some things change and other things never change. Our son recently returned from a weekend in New York City. And, that is one city which I feel as though I know something about as I've spent several vacations there many years ago. So, when he came home tired and sleepy I had to wait until the next day to question him about his trip.

He informed me that everywhere he went it took money—a play on Broadway, meals in Chinese and Mexican restaurants and sightseeing trips. When I asked if he's been in the Empire State Building, he said, "No, but I looked down on it from the World Trade Center observation deck!" I haven't even seen this huge twin-type building.

But when he began talking about subways, we had a common ground—except for the price. No longer can one ride for miles and then transfer for more miles and all this for a nickel. Now the price is 50 cents.

We heartily agreed that the farm is a much better place to live than a big city.

In organizing the Manheim Township 4-H Community Club this year, I've been pleased with the turn out and the parent response to our program.

Even businessmen in the community are quick to say "yes" when we ask about touring their facilities. We hope to see a veterinary clinic, a planing mill, a phone company and go on a fossil hunt among other things.

Now if our project leaders are successful in keeping the children interested in completing their work, we will have a good year.
