

Junior Cooking Edition

The United Dairy Industry Association has planned a menu for a child's party that children can make themselves. The UDIA says every party has to have its substantial foods. For youngsters, there's nothing like a variation of cheeseburgers. But, for smaller appetites, Animal Cutout Sandwiches are just the ticket with their egg salad filling and cheese decorations.

Children adore choices, so the UDIA has given them various options to choose from on nutritious beverages. They can either mix or shake their own, from Milk Party Punch in a radiant pink to a Purple Cow or a Chocolate Spritzer with Peanut Honey Milk and Butterscotch Shake as good extras.

So, when your child's birthday rolls around again, let him or her have a part in the fun of preparing for it.

MILK PARTY PUNCH

½ cup powdered red punch drink mix
½ cup cold water
3 cups cold milk
Milk ice cubes

Pour drink mix into bowl; stir in water until dissolved. Pour milk into serving pitcher. Pour dissolved punch into milk, stirring constantly. Add milk ice cubes. Serve immediately.

Milk Ice Cubes: Pour 2 cups milk into ice cube tray; freeze until firm. To release, dip bottom of tray in warm water a few seconds; turn out. Yields one quart.

CHEESY BURGER TOPPING

1 cup (4oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
6 hamburger buns
Butter, softened
Lettuce
6 cooked hamburgers
Cherry tomatoes

Combine cheese, onion, chili sauce and pickle relish; mix lightly. Spread hamburger buns with butter. Top with lettuce, hamburgers and cheese topping. Close and garnish with cherry tomatoes, if desired.

Note: Cheese topping may be prepared in advance of serving. Cover and refrigerate. Makes enough for six hamburgers.

ANIMAL CUT-OUT SANDWICHES

4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
One-third cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup finely chopped sweet pickle
2 teaspoons grated onion (optional)
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt

Thin sliced sandwich bread, white and whole wheat
Butter, Softened
Pasteurized process American cheese slices
Combine eggs, sour cream, pickle, onion, mustard and salt; blend well. Cut bread into animal shapes with cookie cutters. (Save scraps for bread pudding or dry and grate for bread crumbs.) Butter bread. For each sandwich, spread 1 slice of bread with about 1 tablespoon egg salad; top with second slice of bread. Lightly butter tops of sandwiches. Cut cheese with cookie cutters to match sandwiches; place matching cheese slice on top of each sandwich. (Save cheese scraps for grilled cheese sandwiches or casseroles.) Yields about 20 small sandwiches.

Fulton Grange helps the deaf

LANCASTER, Pa.— During the month of May, Fulton Grange 66 has been busy working on projects for the deaf and hearing impaired.

Twenty copies of the songbook, Lift Up Your Hands, a songbook in sign language, have been donated to the Solanco School Libraries, Quarryville Library, Medical Center, the Family Health Clinic, the Lancaster General Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, the Lancaster Osteopathic Hospital, and the Hearing Conservation Center.

Used hearing aid batteries are also being collected. These will be recycled and the money received will be used in Pa. for the deaf.

If anyone wishes to contribute used batteries, contact a Grange member.

Rehrersburg 4-H meets

REHRERSBURG, Pa.— The Rehrersburg Adventures 4-H Club met at the Bethel School on June 3 for a work meeting. The group constructed backpacks for bicycling and pack-a-meal projects.

The first bicycling meeting will be held on June 15 at the parking lot of the Little Swatara Church of the Brethren. And, those girls working on the Hawaiian Foods project will meet on June 20 in the home of Mrs. George Malsbury.

Pamela Keeney will represent the club at 4-H days at Penn State on June 20 - 23.
