gives information about repairs, costs, comparisons of workmanship, and any information one might like to have before making a purchase or a complaint about damaged merchandise.

"Just last Friday a gentleman came in here. He said he was 64 years old and could finally afford a color television and he wanted to check for himself to see what kind to buy!" remarked Mrs. Entekin.

Mrs. Entekin is now getting ready for the July 5 opening of the Summer Reading Program for children ages seven to 14. Those children who have read six books and written short reviews by August 13 will receive certificates and free passes to Fantasyland.

The Southern Lancaster County Library Center is definitely filling a need for its community by providing books as well as many learning opportunities for all ages. It has served since opening as a model for such projects for several greater library systems which have been hosted by the Lancaster County Library System. Presently, the system is requesting an $18,000 redevelopment grant to continue additional improvements such as paving the parking area, landscaping, and staffing the facility for another 12 months. If this grant is not approved, the community will have to meet an $8,000 budget on its own starting October 1 of this year. Local residents are working hard to find the necessary funding in the event that the center may need to be totally financially supported by the community.

The first six months' operation of the library center has been very successful and community support has been very successful and community support has been favorable. The southern end of Lancaster County has a reading center to take pride in and to utilize through a variety of programs.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

In my mind there is no other way except to acknowledge that "food" is the best bargain available. I don't have statistics at my finger tips to prove my point, but just general knowledge of present situations.

My dander really rises when I'm forced to pay fifty to one hundred dollars an hour to professional people like doctors, dentists or lawyers and then have them question my charging one dollar for a quart of vegetables or fruit. Sometimes they, who earn enormous amounts, will actually tell me that they can buy the same thing for ninety cents some place else. When I think of the weeks and even months of back-breaking work that went into growing the food...!

this time, the tenant decided he wanted less woodland area to trim so we put up a new fence.

Philip's dog, "Buster" likes to go along with them but sometimes he wanders far afield and doesn't come when called. The other day, after having his doghouse moved from the corner of the yard to the back of the barn and yelping all day about the change, he ran away when he was unchained. I could just imagine Philip's long face if he weren't found and an "ad." had to be placed in the newspaper. However, he was finally discovered snooping around another cabin where he had found a rabbit hole and was brought home in disgrace.

We are at their mercy as to when we may see them for their services and as to how long we may see them and we must abide by their decisions. It surely makes me wish that for a few years we could charge just what we think our services are worth. After all - food is essential.

Homemaker's Camp set for August

Homemaker's Camp will again be held this year at Camp Swatara on August 16 to 18. This year's theme is "Living with Change," which will be woven into the three day event via crafts, speakers, and devotions.

Between hay crops the men have been making a new meadow fence where it runs along a woods and down to the river. Usually our cottagers take more and more land by gradually mowing into the fields. But

The program will begin on August 16 at 7 p.m. and conclude on August 18 at 4 p.m. The cost is $18.
