

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER - The heat wave, which weathermen agriculture. Hardest hit were poultry and swine producers where animal pressing heat and humidity. survival was heavily dependent on artificially created environments. There are several reports of say is to end now, took its toll flocks suffocating to death on just about all aspects of from the intense heat and some other animals having been lost due to the op-Crops suffered also in some areas, particularly those which had received little or no rain in recent weeks.

According to reports received by Lancaster Farming, most of the tragedies and severe losses

[Continued on Page 26]

Beef program defeated

LITITZ - Lancaster Farming learned Thursday evening that the Beef Referendum, has been defeated both nationally and in Pennsylvania. Although a complete tally of the vote has not yet been made, the prediction is that only about 58 to 60 per cent of those voting favored the self-help promotion program. Texas, the nation's number one beef producing state, failed to pass the referendum too. with only 64 per cent of the voters giving their approval. A two-thirds (66 per cent) approval was needed for the Beef Referendum to pass. In Pennsylvania, the measure was split about evenly, with half of the voters favoring the program, and the other half opposing. According to Harry Stam-

Continued on Page 391

Environmentalists hit

Sweeping social economic changes recommended by leading environmentalists would mean the smaller food supplies and sharply higher food prices of the American National leave their homes and jobs in

DENVER, Colo. - Cattlemen's Association said wrban areas and become and recently. ANCA President Wray Finney also pointed out that "labor intensive" agriculture proposed by the environmentalists would for consumers, the president require countless people to farm workers.

Finney's comments were made in connection with ANCA's recent review of a task force report, entitled "The Unfinished Agenda," which was prepared by

[Continued on Page 37]

Berks 4-H Center planned

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER Berks County Reporter

LEESPORT, Pa. - Work has been underway for the first phase of Berks County's proposed 4-H Center. When completed, the 4-H Center will consist of two horse rings, an exhibit or multipurpose building housing an auditorium, conference room, rest rooms, and food preparation facilities, and a livestock building which will be a pole barn with a show ring under roof.

The extravagant complex will be built on a 10-acre site, rented from the County on a 99 year lease for one dollar per year, according to Mae Bleiler, assistant home economist and 4-H coordinator. This land lies behind the present Agricultural Building. The grounds will

[Continued on Page 39]

In this issue

Farm Calendar Life on the farm Medicine & Mgmt. Angus show Horse club feature 20 Conservation field day Poultry queen contestants 28 York Dress Revue Farm Women Societies 33 Homestead Notes

Women's Calendar Ida's Notebook Home on the Range Jr. Cooking Edition Classifieds Lancaster DHIA Berks Dress Revue Facts for dairymen

Berks DHIA Beef cook-off Diet report hit My Thoughts Lancaster Dress Revue 101 Adams Dress Revue Joyce Bupp Sale Reports Public Sale Register 105