

Tim Beck captures title of outstanding 4-H'er

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

SEVEN VALLEYS - When you're eight years old and deliver your first 4-H project to the formidable competition at the York Fair, it could be a rather overwhelming experience. But it was just the beginning of a successful exhibiting career for a Seven Valleys R2 young man who was recently selected the Outstanding 4-H member at the York Fair.

Tim Beck, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beck, exhibited a handyman project on that first York Fair entry occasion nine years ago. Several years of baby beef exhibiting have now made him an accomplished competitor in the showing. His Angus-Chianina crossbred took the championship of the lightweight division, while he was chosen reserve champion showman and placed second in beef showmanship.

During the special Pennsylvania Polled Hereford show at this year's York Fair, Tim served as ringside announcer. He can frequently be found helping the younger 4-H members prepare their animals for exhibition and has won numerous fitting awards.

Active in countywide 4-H activities, Tim has been president of the Baby Beef club in the York area for the past two years and also handles the presidency of the Loganville Community Club.

The young beef showman has also earned a reputation in meats and livestock judging competition.

"When I was little, I often went along to the judging training sessions," he recalls. "And the teams often came to our place to practice, too." The family operates the Richard Beck and Sons butcher shop at Seven Valleys R2.

The 1975 meats judging team, of which Tim was a member, won first place in the state contest, and then battled to third place during 4-H nationwide competition that same year. Tim is now the assistant coach for the county team. He hopes to use his York Fair award, an expense-paid trip to a national livestock exhibit of the recipient's choice, to accompany the meats judging team to their national competition. That's scheduled during the Royal Livestock Exposition in Kansas City the week of November 6.

According to Tony Dobrosky, assistant York County Extension agent, the award is presented to a county 4-H member who is "an outstanding member taking part in the fair competition." The selection was judged on 4-H blueforms which had been submitted earlier and on the basis of personal interviews. Qualities that the judging board looked for included helpfulness to other exhibitors, interest, participation and promotion of the fair, leadership, and other 4-H activities.

The panel of judges included representatives of both the York Fair and the county 4-H leaders. Daniel Shive represented the livestock superintendent's office, while John Jermyn participated for the board of managers.

Mrs. Donald Flory was chosen to judge for the 4-H managers.

Handling the gavel of the 4-H presidency is a familiar role to Tim Beck, Seven Valleys R2, who was recently selected the Outstanding 4-H member at the York Fair.
