Congressman criticizes set-aside prog.

WASHINGTON, D.C. - U.S. Congressman Tom Harkin (D-5th Ia.), a member of the U.S. House Agriculture - Committee, says he welcomes the announcement of a 10 per cent set-aside program for feed grain producing crop land, but has criticized the "conditional" aspects of the announcement, as a "decision not to decide, which will only create confusion in the farm belt."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced the set aside program in mid-November, but said it would be reviewed and possibly revoked in January or February.

"I think the facts were there for a clear cut, yes or no decision," Harkin said. "As it now stands, corn growers will be left in limbo until January or February, wondering whether the set-aside program will be implemented or whether it will not." The law required a decision by November 15, to avoid this kind of uncertainty.

The price of alfalfa is going up

Good alfalfa hay is worth more than it was last year especially if it's good quality and free of weeds. You can get rid of most of the weeds in your alfalfa fields — including cheatgrass, tansymustard, henbit, chickweed and Russian thistle — with one spray of Princep herbicide, this fall. Princep will keep most annual weeds out of your alfalfa, so next year's crop will be worth more. Just spray it on after last cutting this fall. And next year when you're cutting better hay you'll be glad you did.

Princep for clean alfalfa.
