4-H chicken project about to start

NORRISTOWN - This Summer a 4-H broiler/roaster project will be open to boys and girls ages 8 through 19 at Heckler Plains, a restored historical farm in the Harleysville area of Montgomery County. Dave Morrison, a local attorney and 4-H poultry leader from the county will be leading the project.

The birds will be housed at Heckler Plains and participants will be assigned certain days to be responsible for feeding and watering on these designated days.

The broiler project will meet Saturday mornings, starting June 3 with broiler chicks and will end July 30 with dressing the birds. Participants will measure feed consumption and calculate the cost and rate of converting feed to meat. Bird handling, genetics, nutrition, disease control and economics will be covered at weekly meetings. Visits to a poultry farm and hatchery are also planned. At the end of the project each participant will dress two birds to take home.

In July, there will be an all day workshop where youngsters will learn how to grade eggs, judge live and dressed birds plus determine how good a layer a hen is by analyzing the bird. This will be conducted by a Penn State University Extension Service poultry specialist.

The roaster/capon project will last until Labor Day weekend. Participants will receive instruction in the caponizing of cockerels.

The business management aspects of poultry farming (egg and broiler production) will be stressed for high school age participants.

Ten Dollars ($10.00) per participant will cover costs toward brooder equipment, coop construction materials, and feed. The project is limited to 25 participants.

There will also be an opportunity for scouts to obtain a merit badge in a related but more intensive project.

Anyone interested should contact Dave Morrison at his office, 215-539-4530, 2300 Girard Plaza, Philadelphia, Pa. 19102.
