

Sale of Champions

Miss Hukill and her brother James, 16, also won champion pen honors.

The Hukill sheep enterprise, although quite successful, involves only a few sheep and a very small space. The family lives in a rural development, Pinewater Farm, which was a commercial farm until its owner decided to grow houses instead of crops. The original barn and some open space still remain in the development so the Hukills rent barn space and 1½ acres of pasture for their flock.

Miss Hukill, who has enrolled in a wide range of 4-

H projects including woodworking and automotive safety, graduated from St. Andrews School new Middletown, Del. and plans to attend Clemson University in South Carolina this Fall.

The reserve champion lamb, 126 pound Hampshire, also grew up in a rented barn. Schubert, who is in his first year of 4-H, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Schubert and lives in a suburban area in New Castle County. His lamb was kept at the 4-H barn—a site made available to nonfarm 4-H members in the county who want to raise livestock. The project, supervised by the New Castle County Cooperative Extension Service involved 26 4-H members and 14 lambs and 20 pigs this year.

Schubert's lamb brought a total of $309. The buyer, Robert F. Rider, who is president of the Delaware State Fair, Inc., said he wasn't sure what he would do with the lamb but that he had no plans to slaughter it. Schubert is a member of the Hill and Dale 4-H Club.

The champion market hog was raised by another nonfarm 4-H member enrolled in his first year of livestock projects. Skaggs' only other livestock experience was in this year's Junior Broiler competition where he finished 23rd. He raised two Yorkshire gilts. One was the Junior Market Champion and the other placed fifth in the 4-H feeder hog round-up, also held during the State Fair. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Skaggs, Jr., he is a member of the Friendship 4-H Club.

The exhibitor of the reserve champion market hog was the only participant in the Sale of Champions who can claim a farm background. Her parents operate a commercial swine business in Sussex County. Miss Majchrzak, a five-year member of the Sandy Fields 4-H Club is enrolled in several 4-H projects in addition to her swine enterprise, including clothing, money management, rabbits, and horses. Her gilt sold for $519.

A highlight of the Sale of Champions was the appearance of the 1978 National Pork Queen Tammy Moerer. The 20-year-old Johnson, Nebraska farm girl has been traveling throughout the country touting the merits of pork.

Whenever she can, she talks about the variety of pork cuts available to the consumer and the variety of ways to prepare pork.

Miss Moerer's travel expenses were paid by the National Pork Producers Council, sponsor of the Pork Queen Contest. This organization is the official voice of the nation's hog producers.

Sarah Hukill, an 18-year-old 4-H member from Harbeson showed this 98-pound Polled Dorset lamb as the champion market lamb. It was purchased in the Sale of Champions by Acme Markets, Inc., represented here by George McMillan, director of Meat Procurement. The selling price was $4.00 per pound. Miss Hukill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hukill. She has been a 4-H member for eight years and has raised and exhibited sheep for six years.

The reserve champion market lamb in the Junior Sheep Show at the Delaware State Fair was shown by Eddie Schubert, a 10-year-old Wilmington, Del. 4-H member. The 126-pound Hampshire lamb sold for $2.45 per pound and was purchased by Robert F. Rider of Bridgeville, Del., president of The Delaware State Fair, Inc. The first year 4-H member is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Schubert.
