hay and straw, these items will be made available at market prices. Entrants are asked to indicate on their entry form how many bales of hay or straw they might need.

All exhibitors must abide by A.D.G.A. show rules. The judge's decision will be final. Advance entries until September 13 will require a fee of $2.00 per animal. Entries on the day of the show will be assessed at $2.50 per head.

Awards include ribbons of up to five places and rosettes for champions and special classes. The show is open to the following breeds: Alpine, LaMancha, Nubian, Saanen, Toggenburg, as well as recorded grades.

Showmanship and fitting contests in both junior and senior divisions will be included in the 4-H show. That event will be followed by adult showmanship competition and a goat costume contest. At 2 p.m. the group will hold its first business meeting, to be followed an hour later by a variety of workshops. At 6:30 p.m. it'll be chicken bar-b-que time. Entertainment begins at 8 p.m.

At 8:30 a.m. on Sunday the open show gets underway with Gill Brown as the official judge. There will be no pre-show milk-out.

Anyone interested in entering the open show is asked to send entries to Verna Guzel at the previously given address. All rules stated previously for the 4-H show apply to the open show as well.

Early arrivals will be cared for beginning at 6 p.m. on Friday, September 15.

4-H goat show winners picked

NORRISTOWN - Karen Bradshaw of North Wales took grand champion honors with her two-year old grade doe "Lucy" in the Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Goat show held recently as part of the annual county 4-H Fair in Lansdale. "Lucy" was also named senior champion animal.

Reserve champion ribbons went to "Sally," a yearling doe owned by Margaret Schoenly of Barto. The pair also captured reserve champion senior animal. The junior champion animal was won by "Dilly," owned by Jennifer Bradshaw of North Wales while Dana Trumbower's goat "Pasha" was reserve.

Dana, who hails from Horsham, was also named champion showman. Judge Dr. Ed Watson of West Chester placed Kim Bradshaw, North Wales, as reserve champion showman. The champion fitter award was won by Rebecca Carman of Schwenksville with Dana Trumbower also capturing reserve. Assistant judge for the Fitting and Showmanship classes was Stacey Seybold of Linfield.
