Seed law violated

NEW YORK, N.Y. -- Rupert Seed Farms, New Waterford, Ohio, has paid $1,275 to settle a case involving alleged violations of a federal truth-labeling law. U.S. Department of Agriculture officials had charged the firm with violating the Federal Seed Act, a law intended to protect farmers and consumers who buy seed.

The case involved four shipments of oat seed to Pennsylvania in 1974, 1976, and 1977.

Alleged violations for three shipments were false labeling as to the presence of noxious-weed seed, and the presence of the prohibited noxious-weed seed quackgrass. For the remaining shipment, alleged violations were false labeling as to the percentage of pure seed, failure to label each variety present or show the words "Varieties Not Stated," and failure to keep required records.

Seed regulatory officials with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture cooperated with AMS in carrying out the investigations. AMS administers the Federal Seed Act with the help of state seed agencies.
