

Case introduces four new tractors

RACINE, Wis. — The J.I. Case Company, headquartered here, recently introduced a "new generation" of powerful farm tractors, the Case 90 Series, with features designed for operator comfort and convenience which the manufacturer says are one-of-a-kind.

The four new 2-wheel drive tractors with PTO horsepower ratings of 108, 128, 160 and 180 represent an approach to modern tractor design and construction for the next decade, Case spokesmen say. The machines are quiet, convenient, efficient, and help the farmer accomplish his basic goal: to utilize more productive hours every day and work more acres in each productive hour.

New innovations for the "Case Nineties" include: a "Silent Guardian" cab; a newly engineered hydraulic system; a new 8-speed synchromesh transmission on Models 2090 and 2290, or an optional "Power Shift" transmission (standard on 2390 and 2590 Models); an easily removed hood for easy servicing of the engine;

The J.I. Case Company has introduced four new tractors with many new features.

easy ground-level servicing of major tractor components such as pumps, valves, draft control system, pto, transmission, batteries (in swing-out case), air filters, etc.

Additionally, each of the four new tractors has a 504 cubic inch engine, which is turbocharged in the three largest models and offers a heavy-duty crankshaft, massive block, self-cleaning air induction system, constant pressure oil lubricating system, and strength and precision in every component.

The new "Silent Guard" cab is of the four-post roll-protective kind, offering ample room and quiet surroundings. It has a new T-bar steering and control console, improved dust and sound insulation, plus all the options for comfort and practicality that a farmer might want — from coat hook to stereophonic music.

A choice of two newly designed seats is being offered by Case, one of which is known as "The President's Chair." It is adjustable eight ways, swivels, has two folding arm rests, and is covered with 100 per cent nylon transportation cloth that is tear-resistant.

Transmission controls, hydraulics, clutch, brake and the Case Diff-Loc are activated at the tip of a toe or finger. A new solid-state instrument cluster with flashing condition indicators clearly tells what might need attention. The driver sits ahead of, not over, the rear axle for greater comfort.

The Case dealer in your area can show and tell you more. See Lancaster Farming's advertisements for the name of a dealer near you.

The new cab on the Series 90 Case tractors offers convenience and comforts.
