both of whom are 4-H leaders. Her two older brothers, Richard, 19, and David, 17, are former state 4-H winners. Younger brothers Robert, 14, and Brian, 11, are also active 4-H club members.

Cathy's award-winning 4-H activity was in the health category. As part of her project she demonstrated first-aid techniques and conducted health programs for her 4-H club. In addition she prepared a number of research reports on cancer, epilepsy, and several childhood diseases.

Her high school activities include the field hockey team, National Honor Society and Student Government association. She has been captain of the girl's track team for two years, setting the school record for the mile in 1977.

She will use her $1000 scholarship to attend Goldey Beacom College for two years in order to become a legal secretary. After that she hopes for the traditional home and family, admitting that she's been influenced by the close relationship she has with her parents and brothers.

Cathy's scholarship was provided by Eli Lilly Co., one of about 50 businesses and foundations donating the awards and scholarships.

made from scraps of yarn; hooked rugs; even an easy-to-find key chain ornament made out of a clothes pin. Donna learned many of the crafts at 4-H camp, which she has attended for seven years.

The entire Hinzman family is 4-H oriented. Donna's younger brother is another enthusiastic 4-H'er, and their mother pitches in as a project leader in such areas as food preservation. Both brother and sister participate in the food preservation program.

William Hinzman admits to feeling a little left out when his whole clan goes off without him to attend evening 4-H program, but his long hours as a dairy herdsman prevent him from joining in. Still, he agrees that 4-H has broadened the whole family's horizons.

Living way out in the country as they do, 4-H gives the Hinzmans the opportunity to see, do and learn things that would otherwise be unavailable to them.

Most of the 4-H projects in which Donna has participated are related in some way to her overall interest in consumer affairs. As a first-year student at Delaware Technical and Community College, Donna is building upon her 4-H acquired skills in cooking, canning, sewing, electricity, and wood-working. A human services major, she's learning how to use these skills to serve others.

Nineteen-year-old Donna Hinzman, Harrington has won a national award for her consumer affairs project at the National 4-H Congress. She received a $1000 scholarship sponsored by Montgomery Ward.

A 4-H member for eight years, Donna truly lives the famous "Head, Heart, Hands and Health" motto; a clear-thinking, service-oriented young woman, Donna uses her consumer expertise to improve the quality of life for the people around her.

Ever since childhood Donna has been interested in finding ways to make a limited supply of money go further. Today her consumer affairs 4-H project has grown to include a clothing and coupon exchange. Friends, neighbors, and relatives bring Donna their unwanted cents-off coupons and outgrown clothing, then look through her stock to select items they can use.

As another aspect of her project, Donna often demonstrates inexpensive home-decorating crafts.

The Hinzman home is filled with examples of Donna's work - including quilting, crocheted afghans and pillows; dried flower arrangements; a pincushion

Virginville Grange holds meeting

VIRGINVILLE - The Virginville Grange youth reported they will be having a hay ride on December 2, and practicing for their Hee-Haw show on December 4.

The Jeffrey Wetzel family won second prize out of five family vocal competitors in the National Grange competition held recently.

The women made shoo-fly pies for the Y.W.C.A. Helen Epting won a blue ribbon for her shawl, from the State Grange. Ruth Beaver, Ruth DeLong and Jean Hertzog were the judges for the pumpkin pie contest. The winners were: first, Eleanore Hill; second, Florence Pink; and third, Harriette Miller.

It was announced there will be eight different places next year to take the sixth degree. Jeffrey Wetzel has been named the new County Junior Deputy.

Jane Hill, Keith Treichler, and Beverly Wagner will be in charge of planning the Grange's 25th anniversary next year.

There will be a Pomona meeting on December 2 at the Agricultural Center. A Christmas program is planned. All juniors are to bring their reports.

The women will meet on December 6 at 7:30 p.m. Women are to bring cookies.
