The sorority milking contest featured Kappa Kappa Gamma, Alpha Phi, and Chi Omega placing 1-2-3, respectively. A milking contest for independent female students was won by Karen Oellers and Kathy Listinak. Martha Hoge and Carol Mazze were second, while Joyce Elmeier and Karen Schmidt were third.

The award presentations didn't end there. Top showmen and fitters in individual breeds were also recognized.

Taking top showmanship honors in the Ayrshire breed was Nancy Dinsmoor. Runner-up was Christine Kyper. In fitting, the top two places were won by Christine Kyper, and Pat Weiss, respectively.

Tops among Brown Swiss fitters were Cheryl Moran and Joe Schacte, who took first and second place, respectively. Champion showman among Brown Swiss exhibitors was Earl Biggers. Doug Braham was runner-up.

In the Guernsey division, Martha Gregory was the top showman and reserve champion fitter. Karen Oellers was the top fitter, and Pam Fair was runner-up in the showmanship contest.

Loyal Penn Staters include loyal Nittany Lion football fans, and although the Dairy Expo was enough reason to travel to Centre County, the Blue-White football game couldn't be resisted. The Dairy Expo lasted the entire day and had a strong attendance throughout, but the dairy crowd thinned somewhat around 2 p.m. when coach Joe Paterno showed what he has to offer this year. It turned out to be another kicking game until late in the fourth quarter (that's football this time, not udders) when both teams scored touchdown and tied the game at 22 a piece. The Nittany Lion rose to the occasion by climbing a human pyramid and signaling "We're Number 1" with both hands.

Terry Miller first and Barbara Barnett second.

Baxter, the grand champion in both fitting and showmanship, went into the ring with a Holstein.

Show manager for this year was W. Douglas Seipt, a senior from Keystone Farms, Easton. Assisting him were the head breed managers. They were:

Louise Pelkofer of Pittsburgh, Ayrshires; Ted Bean, Franklin, Brown Swiss; Mark Bachman, Ulysses, Guernseys; Dale Olver, Honesdale, Jerseys; and Ernest Pyle, Malvern, Holsteins.

Assistant breed managers were Christine Kyper, Huntingdon; Pam Hess, Stillwater; Jane Gregory, Lititz; Jeff Harding, Brookville; Lori Sollenberger, Everett; Cynthia Shirey, Beavertown; Dave Castrogiovanni, Montgrose; and Dave Schuler, Fleetwood.

The dairy exposition is sponsored annually by the Penn. State Dairy Science Club.
