

Keystone Grange 2 sponsors country fair

TRAPPE - Keystone Grange No. 2, Trappe, hosts its seventh annual country fair on July 28. Many residents of southeastern Pa., particularly in Montg. Co., have come to look forward to the event held at the Municipal Park (water works), First Avenue, Trappe. Grounds open at 11 a.m. to dusk; opening ceremonies at 11:45 a.m.

Grange fair co-chairmen Albert Zvarick, Collegeville, and Charles E. Wismer, Jr., Trappe, outlined several new events at recent committee meetings. A precision drill and trick horse exhibition will be presented by the Lulu Mounted Guard of the Lulu Temple Shriners. The 4-H Rabbit Club will have animals judged and on display.

Homemakers camp set for August

BETHEL — The annual Homemakers Camp will be held August 14 to 16 at Camp Swatara, near Bethel, Pa.

The theme for this year is "Living with change." Cost is $18 which includes meals, lodging, and recreation. Crafts will be available for those ladies interested.

For more information or reservations, one can contact Doris Thomas, Lancaster County home economist, 717-394-6851; or Ruth Youngst, 717-445-6415.

It is not required that ladies who attend are members of a farm women organization.

Mrs. Carol Zollers and David Ketner, horse and livestock exhibits respectively, report the horse troop will perform twice; livestock, both dairy and beef, 4-H judging to begin by noon and continue throughout the afternoon.

Samuel Kriebel, Mainland farmer and antique machinery buff, will have charge of field events such as grain threshing, grain grinding, horse-powered treadmill, and many other older farm machines and gasoline engines. Working machinery exhibitions will be made twice during the day. A display of antique tractors, organized by Jon Kriebel, Summeytown, show sharp contrast to newer models with power steering and air-conditioned cabs used on larger farm operations. Crowds are also drawn to the garden-size tractors pulling competitions in various weight classes.

Antique and classic cars fascinate young and old. There will be a number of these venerable "metal steeds" on display under the direction of Dick Franks. An on-the-grounds parade is planned. In the day of increased awareness of fuel shortages, it is intriguing to look to times when our economy became based on a very mobile society.

Traditional farm and home crafts, and commercial exhibits, organized by co-chairman Wismer, still constitute one of the great interests at the fair. These displays are open all day, as well as a garden show (entries open to public), food stands and pony rides. Children's games for the younger folks are held in mid-afternoon.

Musical entertainment in the late afternoon and evening complements a chicken barbecue; bring lawn chairs. BBQ tickets are available from Grange members; serving starts at 4:30 P.M.; limited sales at the door.

Admission is free; parking charge $1 per car. Rain date is Aug. 4.

A hand-crank operated "windmill" will be exhibited by owner Harold Gotwals, Yerkes and Samuel Kriebel, Mainland, at the Keystone Grange Fair which will be held on July 28 in Trappe.
