Show. It had placed first in Lancaster County's 4-H round-up. Steve has been showing in both 4-H and FFA competitions for a total of eight years.

Arlen Keener, 18, enjoys working with the cows as a herdsman on the Pennsprings Farm. The reserve senior and grand champion, "August Hill Rorkman Leseyle" was a two year old 4-H animal. Keener showed four of his own animals placing first with the senior calf and second with a senior yearling heifer.

In the senior fitting and showmanship contests, Keener took top honors, while Kauffman took the reserve honors. Not only is Keener capable of showing animals, he is an excellent judge. In nationally 4-H dairy judging competition, Keener placed first in the Holstein division to earn a ninth place ranking on overall dairy judging.

Deb Weaver, R7 Manheim, took the junior showmanship honors. This was Weaver's first year of competition as a member of the Lancaster 4-H Dairy Club. Although she does not live on a farm her father purchased a junior Ayrshire calf that was named junior champion of the Ayrshire competition. Weaver is the daughter of R. Clair and Anna May Weaver.

Karen Long of Willow Street took the reserve junior championship with her senior calf.

For the remainder of the Ayrshire competition, Ken and Joann Findley shared all the top honors. Ken Findley took the grand and reserve senior championship with his two and three year olds; while Joann Findley showed a four year old to win the best udder competition.

In the Brown Swiss breed competition, Kerry Boyd, with the assistance of his wife and father, took all the top honors.

Boyd's grand and senior champion, a three year old, "Susie", was sired by "Vine Valley Chips Paul". This female won the grand honors at the Ephrata Fair a few weeks ago.

The reserve honors were bestowed to "Freda", a two year old.

The reserve junior champion honors were awarded to a junior yearling owned by David Kulp, Manheim.

The judge for Manheim's dairy show was Jed Beshore, a 1976 graduate of Delaware Valley College, where he participated on the dairy judging team. Presently he is in partnership with his father, near New Cumberland York County.

Following is a list of final placings.
