Agee arrested for meat scan

ANNAPOLIS — Walter F. Agee, a 37 year old Pennsylvania man, faces 14 counts of operating a bait and switch meat scheme in LaVale, Maryland, according to the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Lacy DeGrange, of MDA's Weights and Measures, said Agee was arrested after he opened another store, known as the Beef Quarter Meat Store, in Roscoe, Pennsylvania.

The store was opened during the last week in November, and Agee was arrested the next weekend, DeGrange stated.

Agee, of Indian Head, Fayette County, has been released on bail at $75,000.

The Pennsylvania man was arrested after warrants had been issued for his arrest as a result of an under-cover investigation by MDA and the Allegheny Health Department.

MDA inspectors went in to Agee's meat store in LaVale, Maryland, and purchased meat. The meat from one of several purchases was examined by the Allegheny

Co. Health Department and was found to contain maggots.

The MDA officials enlisted the help of Dr. John Buric, associate professor of animal science at the University of Maryland, who reconstructed the carcass. He confirmed the MDA allegations that the purchases were less than the quantity and quality listed and advertised.

Agee has been charged with two counts of false advertising, one of selling adulterated meat, two of false pretenses, two Weights & Measures violations and 7 of advertising goods with no intent to sell them.

If convicted on all 14 counts, Agee could face a jail term of 30½ years and a fine of $10,500.

Northampton ag agencies give conservation awards

BY VIVIAN PAUL
Staff Correspondent

WIND GAP — Four area residents were honored last Friday for their efforts in the development of conservation practices in Northampton County.

The awards were given by the Northampton County Conservation District at the annual dinner meeting of the county's agricultural agencies.

Barry Ott, a dairy farmer and district director from 1970 to 1979, was given the Distinguished Service Award. Ott and his father were active in early efforts to exempt silos from the Pennsylvania sales tax.

Robert Johnson, a professor of civil engineering at Lehigh University received the Environmental Award to Mankind. Johnson was cited for his work throughout the county in sediment and erosion control.

Mrs. Gertrude Fox was named Concerned Citizen of the year. She is active in many county and state environmental organizations.

Ingrid A. Simke, a Nazareth Area High School teacher, received the education award. Mrs. Simke is author and editor of an environmental education book used by the County Conservation District.

The meeting was the second of its kind combining the annual meetings of the Conservation District, the Northampton County ASCS and the Cooperative Extension Service.

The ASCS portion of the program was highlighted by an award to Kathryn Baxter, program assistant in the Nazareth office, for her performance as acting county director following the retirement of Arlene Edwards in 1978.

Mrs. Baxter held the post for several months before Judith Noyalas joined the staff.

Donald A. Seipt, president of the Extension executive committee announced that the office has been fully staffed since the appointment of Gregory Solt as agent in charge of dairy and livestock programs.

Elected to a three year term on the extension board were Seipt, Dorothy Bieber, and Sally Young.

Elected to the 4-H Center board were Julie Stark, Linda Brown, and John Valkovec.

William Matson, executive vice-president of the Pennsylvania Rural Electric Association, was the guest speaker.
