Central DHIA elects officers, discusses program changes

MIFFLINTOWN — Timothy Brown, dairy farmer from R3, Littlestown, where he farms Brown Valley Farms in partnership with his brother Marvin, was elected to a two-year term as director on the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

The action came on Wednesday when DHIA directors from the 16-county Central District held their annual meeting at the Stop 35 Restaurant near Mifflintown.

Brown will share the responsibility with Wilbur Burkholder, a dairyman from near Chambersburg, Franklin County, who was elected to a one-year term.

Wilbur Burkholder presided over the meeting in his capacity as President of the District Board. During the meeting State Directors and Extension Dairy Specialists joined to report on the progress of Pennsylvania DHIA which they described as a "1.25 million dollar business".

Cows on test have increased by 19.4 percent during the decade of the 70's. Production of milk per cow showed a 13.5 percent improvement in this same decade.

Continued expansion of the Somatic Cell Program is forcing the state board of directors to consider enlarging the Central Milk Testing Laboratory. This may lead to a future increase in state testing fees.

"The newest $50,000 somatic cell testing machine will begin operations in March, 1980, with a full workload. This means another waiting list will begin to form" said Herbert Gilmore, extension dairy specialist.

The directors discussed the Shook Factors which were implemented on Jan. 1, 1980, as a method of calculating production records which more closely approximate the cows' lactation curve.

The factors are applied to the first, second and last month's production in the lactation.

Farmers members will see the difference in the lactation-to-date column on monthly reports. The factors will be applied only to those cows which freshen after Jan. 1, 1980. The over-all effect will be to lower yearly production records by two to five percent, but to more closely approximate the daily milk weight totals for the lactation.

In the election of officers for the coming year, Kenneth Zeigler of Cumberland County was named President; Alan Reichley of Union County, Vice President; Wayne Hall, Franklin County was re-elected Secretary and Jay Hower of Centre County was elected Treasurer.

USDA reopens comment on uniform work schedules

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has reopened the comment period for 15 days on a proposal to establish a uniform policy for providing inspection service to the meat and poultry industry.

Comments on the proposal will now be accepted until this coming Monday.

Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service, said reopening the comment period will give interested persons more time to prepare comments on the proposed rule.

The proposal—published in the December 4 Federal Register—establishes guidelines for assigning inspectors to meat and poultry plants and for charging overtime inspection costs to the industry.

The proposal calls for plant operators to submit changes in work schedules so that inspection personnel can be assigned as efficiently as possible. It also allows small plants, which often work on an intermittent basis, to match their operating schedules of that of available inspection personnel to minimize overtime costs.

Houston said the costs of inspection, other than overtime, are borne by FSQS. Inspectors performing post-mortem inspection duties would be limited to 10 hours of duty daily, and all other inspectors to 12 hours.

Written comments on the proposal should be sent by Feb. 2 to the executive secretariat, rm. 3807-S, FSQS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250. Oral comments may be made to W. H. Dubbert, 202/447-7470.
