

A HIGH PRODUCING CHESTER CO. HERD FEEDS BROWNS. . .

The well kept Allen Lee Stoltzfus farm is located east of Honeybrook in Chester County.

Allen Lee Stoltzfus, son of Nathan and Dr. Walter Kennett, nutritionist, F. M. Brown's Sons, discusses high moisture corn-oats combination as removed from sealed storage silo.

ALLEN LEE STOLTZFUS, Honeybrook RD#1, has built his high producing, home bred herd, on cow families . . . like many other successful dairymen. Starting from a foundation of 14 Kingpens, Allen Lee has used selective mating with popular sires to gain recognition as owning one of the highest producing herds in Chester County. Testing with Lancaster County DHIA, Allen Lee completed the 1979 DHIA year with a herd average of 19,010 lbs. MILK - 685 lbs. BUTTERFAT - 34 COWS

Allen Lee is a strong advocate of foraging testing and feed programing as performed at Browns. Corn silages and hays are tested several times during the year and are programed with high-moisture corn-oats, Brown's 38 MILKMASTER and minerals to produce the desired balanced feeding program.
