Common stockholders will receive nothing.

Under a voting trust agreement that is part of the plan, the new cooperative, and all other shipping to Atlantic Processing, will have the option to purchase the new company within 10 vears.

Atlantic Processing will be managed by the current officers and staff of Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers and will continue with the marketing programs under the Lehigh Valley Farms label.

Preceeding the vote, dairy president Robert P. Barry and attorney Robert Tallman explained details of the proposal and accepted questions from stockholders. No discussion or statements on the proposal were permitted

The loudest audience response came from a question by a holder of both common and preferred stock who asked, "Why dissolve the organization now — after our best year?"

'It should have been done before," replied Barry, "But we were absorbed with saving the business."

After the vote, Alpheus L. Ruth, chairman of the board said members had provided the board "with new tools for the future.

"You have taken bold new steps needed to meet the challenge of the new decade. The new organization will be able to attract new members. It will be able to attract new capital," Ruth said.

"You have put more stability into the marketplace. We will continue to be the balance wheel of the dairy industry in this part of the country. And you have assured yourselves of a market for your milk at good prices," he said.

Members also elected Roy Hetrick as director-at-large.
