 Not this year went to Pamela Greene of Jarrettsville (Harford county). Her 100-pound wether brought $1.27½ per pound.
 George Bowman, Jr., of West Friendship (Howard county) sold his grand champion dairy steer, a 1100 pound Holstein, for $1 per pound. It went to James W. May, a West Friendship neighbor. The price was a new record for the champion, but it only equaled the record for the class set last year by the reserve champion.

Average price this year for the eight dairy steers sold was 67 cents per pound. This was slightly above the prevailing market price, but a cent below last year's state fair average for an equal number of animals.

The top two animals in this year's 4-h and FFA beef steer show were both Angus-Chianina crossbreds. Glen Cook of Church Hill (Frederick county) sold his 1,175 pound grand champion for $1.65 per pound to Esskay, a major East Coast meat packer located in East Baltimore.

Lori Moxley, 18, of West Friendship (Howard county) got $1.35 per pound for her 1,180-pound Angus-Limousin-Chianina steer. It was purchased by Farm and Home Service, a Southern States Cooperative store at Sykesville.

Average price for 31 beef steers in this year's sale was 92 cents per pound. This was about 20 cents per pound above both last year's sale average and the current market price.

As in most past years, Esskay purchased the grand champion 4-H and FFA market hog. This year's winner brought $3 per pound. It was a 200-pound Yorkshire-Hampshire crossbred gilt entered by Mike Hoff, 10, of Manchester (Carroll county).

Mike's cousin, Dawn Hoff, 14, also of Manchester, had the reserve champion market hog, a 240-pound purebred Hampshire gilt. It sold for $1.40 per pound, again going to Esskay.

In 1978, Dawn's brother, Danny Hoff, now 15, had the grand champion 4-H and FFA market hog at the Maryland State Fair. It was a 250-pound Yorkshire-Hampshire gilt and it went to Esskay for $2.60 per pound.

This year's sale average

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, September 6, 1980—A39

for 38 market hogs was 88 cents per pound. Prices for champions were not included in sale averages for all classes of 4-H and FFA livestock at the Maryland State Fair.

right to continue the business of farming."

Thomas said the planning commission knows now how the farmers feel and they will have to wait until the commission makes its recommendation to assess the progress made Thursday evening. He said, however, that if substantial changes are made in the proposals, another public hearing would be required.
