Farm co-ops to have separate USDA agency

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farm cooperative activities within the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be centered in the Agricultural Cooperative Service, a newly-established USDA agency, according to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

Bergland said the new agency began operating as a separate unit Wednesday. The functions of the agency had been handled by USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service, Bergland said. He said the Agricultural Cooperative Service was known as the Farmers Cooperative Service before being incorporated into ESCS in 1977.

Bergland said Randall Torgerson will be the acting administrator of the new agency, reporting to P.R. Smith, USDA's assistant secretary for marketing and transportation services.

Bergland said farmer cooperatives have enabled their members to be more competitive in the marketplace and that it is USDA policy to offer maximum encouragement and support to family farmers and their cooperatives.

Bergland said the Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service will now be called the Economics and Statistics Service.
