

Corn hits 6-year high; grain reserve called

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers having corn in farmer-owned grain reserve I will have until February 1981 to repay their loans following call of the reserve last Friday, according to John Goodwin, acting executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Although the reserve has been called, farmers are not required to sell the grain. The call requires them to repay their loans within 90 days of the date they are officially notified of the call. County offices of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will officially notify producers whose loans have been called.

The reserve is being called because the national average market price for corn has been above the $3.15 per bushel reserve call level for five consecutive market days. The October 30 five-day average price of $3.26 is the highest received by farmers since September 1974.

"Farmers who have corn in reserve have reaped higher prices because of their participation," Goodwin said. The present average price of corn is $1 more than the season average for 1978, $1.23 above 1977, and $1.10 more than 1976, he said. "This proves the value of the reserve to farmers, and shows that it is working as intended," he said.

Approximately 560 million bushels of corn remain in reserves II and III. These reserves are in release status. Call level for those reserves is $3.26 per bushel.

Under the farmer-owned grain reserve program farmers are eligible to place feed grains and wheat into a reserve during periods of low prices. In return, farmers receive CCC price support loans on the grain in reserve as well as annual storage payments. If prices rise to the "release" level, farmers may repay the loan and market the crop without incurring a penalty.

The call level for corn under the reserve I program is 140 percent of the $2.25 per bushel national average loan rate, or $3.15. Data used by the CCC in determining the call level includes a daily report by the Agricultural Marketing Service which shows prices at selected markets.

The markets reviewed by CCC for corn are Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Omaha and St. Louis.
