

Maryland Grangers support fuel tax

THURMONT, Md. — State Grange Master C. Rodman Myers, announced that delegates at the 106th Maryland State Grange Sessions recently passed Grange policy pertaining to the motor fuel tax.

Chairman of the Roads and Transportation Committee, Charles Brauer of Emmitsburg Grange, stated "while many Maryland residents have reduced consumption and escalating costs have put a slow-down to road construction, maintenance and bridge building, Grangers adopted a resolution to help put more revenue in the transportation budget.

The Maryland State Grange supports a variable motor fuel tax provided that:

The tax not exceed 13 cents per gallon;

The tax not be below nine cents per gallon;

All revenues from the motor fuel tax be set aside

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, November 15, 1980—C5

for bridge and road projects and maintenance exclusively in the state;

The fuel tax can be adjusted only on an annual basis;

Any change in the tax rate must be approved as a part of the Maryland Department of Transportation Annual Budget;

Any increase in the tax rate cannot exceed one cent per gallon annually;

The present off-road exemption from tax to continued.

some merit, Naomi laments, "I don't know how to conserve farmland in an area like this. We've got the potential to grow in industry and the climate and soil is great for farming. I hate to see houses growing everywhere."

It's probably obvious that Naomi is enthusiastic about farming as a way of life. "It's great to raise kids on a farm because they see birth and death and learn the survival of the fittest."

She makes it clear that she is happy to have son James and his wife Judy on the home farm, saying, "We're glad Jim is interested." Her two grandchildren, Jeremy, 4, and Christopher, 2, are growing up on the farm, and Naomi delights in her role as grandmother.

Naomi does the book work for the farming operation, about which she says, "It is my way of keeping my hand on the pulse of the farm." She feels every farm wife should take an interest in the farm and understand its operation against the day of possible widowhood when they will be forced into the position of needing to know. She said American Agri-Women are very strong in urging this understanding.

Raising ten acres of tobacco is part of their farming partnership, and Naomi often helps with the stripping. She laughs and says, "I've solved a lot of problems when we were stripping tobacco."

An active member of Zion Lutheran Church in East Petersburg, Naomi serves on the Dairy Princess Promotion Committee and recently began working parttime at Groff's Farm Restaurant in Mount Joy.

Naomi is president of Farm Women Society 19, a society of which her mother was a charter member. Having joined the Society as a young wife, Naomi gave up her membership during her busy child-rearing years, but decided six years ago to re-join. She said, "I enjoy Farm Women. I joined it for the very reason it was organized - to get out and be with women who have the same interests as I have." She has served as news reporter of the county organization and headed up the committee of ushers for the recent county convention.

With the educational program of the American Agri-Women convention now concluded, there's little question that Naomi will have renewed her enthusiasm for the job of telling the story of agriculture to consumers, to legislators and to whomever else will listen.

With her deep feelings on the subject, she will continue to stay involved in the agricultural community - the place where she feels at home and where she feels a good, secure future lies.
