

Homestead Notes

busy Mother's Day market plant sales weekend, Dwight and Treva offered to be hosts, rather than participants

Later this summer, they returned the visit, spending three days with their new friends in West Berlin. Such trips are not new to Dwight and Treva, who are enthusiastic and extensive travelers. They've visited friends in South America and been to Europe twice, including the Scandinavian countries.

Two years ago, the family purchased a self-contained mobile home camper, and have visited 49 of the 50 states, including Alaska, in the past several years. Dwight is an ardent photographer, combining that hobby with the camping interest.

Before she became a farm wife, Treva served some time with the Brethren Volunteer Service, a corps of both foreign and domestic mission workers for the Brethren Church. Her dedication to similar programs have kept Treva deeply involved in her local Fairview Brethren Church, where she teaches an adult Bible class, as well as in church affiliate groups.

Recently, she served as the president of the auxiliary of the Brethren Home at Cross Keys, in Adams County. The auxiliary plans special programs, such as picnics, holiday parties and barbecues for the home's elderly residents, as well as organize highly-successful fund-raising drives. During the last three years, some $70,000 was raised for the Home's building fund, with the women pledged now to earn another hundred thousand dollars in the next three years.

Treva also represents the church's central Pennsylvania district on the board of Bethany Hospital, a general medical care facility located in Chicago and sponsored by the Brethren Church. That board is presently overseeing construction of a new hospital and Treva has traveled to Chicago in the past to visit the hospital.

The Markey's are members of the York County Farmers Association and Treva is a charter member of Agri-Women. This past November, Penn's Agri-Women hosted the national convention and Treva handled the bank accounts as the convention's financial chairman.

Modest and dedicated, Treva is embarrassed when praised about her accomplishments. Her philosophy probably comes pretty close to the poster that adorns the wall in the blood program office at Memorial Hospital. It says "Sometimes it takes more than love - give blood." That's what Treva Markey gives to others, not only her love, but her time and her leadership as well.

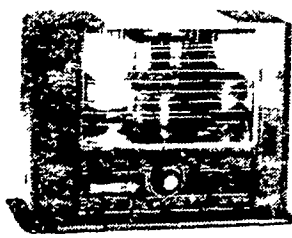

Before a potential donor can be accepted, Treva runs a hemoglobin test with a sample taken via a puncture of the finger.
