

Holstein Association names Distinguished Junior Members

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Six young Holstein breeders have been selected as the 1981 National Distinguished Junior Members in an annual competition sponsored by the Holstein Association of America.

Those selected for outstanding achievements in the Holstein dairy industry are Bonnie Bianchi, Gibbon, Minnesota; Lisa Hasfurder, Eminence, Kentucky; Steven Mell, Waunakee, Wisconsin; Sherry Siemers, Cleveland, Wisconsin; Barbara Smith, Franklin, New York; and Mark Yeazel, Eaton, Ohio.

Each distinguished junior represents at least 10 years of dairying experience.

All of the young people are in college or planning to attend, with future plans to continue dairying in the Holstein industry.

The six winners are receiving an expense-paid trip to the national Holstein convention, this week, in Baltimore, Maryland, where they will be given awards at the Association's annual meeting.

BONNIE BIANCHI

Bonnie Bianchi, 18, of Black Eagle Farm in Gibbon, represents a special kind of dairy success. In less than 10 years, her family has developed a registered Holstein herd by first dispersing a herd of Brown Swiss, then buying and selling grade Holsteins and finally, establishing a registered herd from seed stock of purebred Holstein heifers. The present herd numbers 46 milkers and 60 head of young stock.

At Black Eagle farm, Bonnie says, "We've been using artificial insemination since the beginning of our registered herd. I study the sire performance sheets and help to make the selection of bulls for breeding the animals."

The young University of Minnesota freshman believes it's important to look for individual mating needs of every animal and to try to match these with the strengths of the sires.

Bonnie's cow, Ceresco Leader Shari, walked out of the showing as Grand Champion of the Minnesota State Holstein Jr. Show. Later, the cow was nominated Jr. All-American Aged cow.

Bonnie's leadership qualities have brought her distinction as president of her local FFA chapter, delegate to the national FFA convention and chairman of a FFA youth conference held in Washington, D.C.

"I've learned that in being a leader there is no greater happiness than knowing you've helped
