

PGC asks help of furtakers, 'coon hunters

HARRISBURG — Additional furtaker cooperators are needed in a study of furbearers in Pennsylvania.

A project initiated two years ago to learn more about the state's fur resources is beginning to yield some data, but more information is being sought from those who take furbearers.

Trappers and raccoon hunters who maintain diaries of their activities are needed throughout the state. Information on the number of traps set, hours hunted and animals harvested is of special importance.

Approximately 200 trappers and raccoon hunters volunteered to maintain diaries during the first season of the study. But more information is needed to provide a base for proper management of furbearer populations.

Anyone interested in cooperating in a study should send a card with his or her name and address to Arnold Hayden, Wildlife Biologist, Division of Game Management, Pa. Game Commission, P.O. Box 1567, Harrisburg, PA 17120.
