

Pa. boasts more licensed hunters

HARRISBURG — The annual federal U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service figures indicate that there were over one and a quarter million licensed hunters in fiscal year 1980 in Pennsylvania, more than in any other state.

followed by Texas with 939,267 licensed holders.

A paid license holder is one individual, regardless of the number of licenses he or she may purchase.

The only other states with more than 700,000 paid license holders were New York, with 741,376, and Wisconsin, with 713,152.

Pennsylvania sold nonresident hunting licenses to 96,762 individuals during the same fiscal year. Montana sold 125,612 nonresident hunting licenses, tags, permits and stamps, while the state of Colorado sold 111,661 nonresident hunting licenses, tags, permits and stamps.

In Montana and Colorado, a single hunter may purchase a number of individual species licenses, tags, permits, etc., so the nonresident license sales for many states other than Pennsylvania do not really indicate the actual number of nonresident hunters afield.

The above-mentioned hunting licenses returned $15,757,925.60 to the Pennsylvania Game Commission for use in its wildlife program. Colorado's license sales cost hunters $16,855,235. Only 312,419 individual hunters purchased licenses in Colorado.

Hawk-watching week set

HARRISBURG — Hawk watching has become increasingly popular in recent years, and is developing into an important part of the tourism industry in the Keystone State. Therefore, the week of October 4-10 has been designated as Hawk Watching Week in Pennsylvania this year.
