Waterfowl banding continues

HARRISBURG — Waterfowl banding is being continued by the Game Commission as part of a federal-state program to monitor Pennsylvania bird populations.

Following last year's waterfowl hunting seasons, 3,740 birds were banded, including 888 Canada geese, and 2,852 ducks. Numbers of geese banded were about the same as in the preceding year, but the number of ducks, especially black ducks, were lower.

Another 7,000 birds have been banded recently, but upcoming waterfowl hunting seasons will temporarily interrupt the program.

Banding operations are conducted in cooperation with the Atlantic Flyway Council, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to help determine populations, mortality and survival rates. The information is used to establish hunting seasons and bag limits.

Band recoveries provide the Game Commission with information on local waterfowl populations; the relationship between resident and migratory bird numbers; movements of birds within the state; as well as migration to and from the state; productivity; etc.

Banding studies have been used to establish four experimental waterfowl hunting zones, and to measure what is happening in each of those areas.

Hunters who take banded waterfowl are urged by the Game Commission to return the band to the Game Commission, along with the exact date and location of harvesting.
