

Penn National Horse Show opens today

Outstanding equestrian Harry DeLeyer will once again be guiding his top mounts over hurdles during the Pennsylvania National

Horse Show which begins today at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. This event filled show continues until next Saturday.

HARRISBURG — The 36th annual Pennsylvania National Horse Show, which begins today and continues until next Saturday, will feature an extraordinary array of the country's top riders. The show takes place here at the Farm Show Complex.

Nearly 1,000 horses and riders are registered for the various events, with many winners from previous years, as well as some new competitors vying for the top prizes.

The famous equestrian Harry DeLeyer of East Hampton, N.Y., will be back, once again riding "Dutch Crown." Last year, DeLeyer captured the leading rider award for open jumping and rode "Dutch Crown" to the show's open jumper championship. "Dutch Crown" also placed second in the $10,000 Grand Prix de Penn National. Buddy Brown, riding "Viscount", captured first place in last year's Grand Prix; he plans to compete again this year.

Two riders, Leslie Burr and Melanie Smith, are sure to excite particular interest. Leslie Burr, astride "Chase the Clouds", captured first place in the Meadowlands Grand Prix this past August. Melanie Smith will be riding "Calypso", the current leading jumper money winner.

Other outstanding entries include Terry Rudd on "Semi-Tough"; Jamie Mann on "Signal Point"; and Donald Cheska on "Southside." Joan Scharf-fenberger, Rodney Jenkins and Norman Dello Joio also are scheduled to compete in the Pennsylvania National Horse Show. Armand, Peter and Mark Leone—the triple threat brothers from Franklin Lakes, N.J.—also will take part.

The Prix de Penn National at the 1981 show has been designated as an official World Cup qualifying event. All the United States contestants who were part of last April's World Cup finals in England have entered the Pennsylvania National Show. This includes World Cup champion Michael Matz.

Another international touch has been added by a show entry from Tokyo, Japan. Hiro Tomizawa has registered in the amateur-owner class with two horses, "Espoir en Top" and "Attraction."

Of course, Pennsylvania National is a complete equestrian event with a full-range of classes: jumpers, hunters, saddle horses, Tennessee Walking Horses, roadster ponies, hackney and harness ponies and equestrian.

The show also features numerous special events. A high-goal polo exhibition is planned for Monday evening, October 17; Ladies Barrel Racing takes place Tuesday; Wednesday brings a demonstration by the U.S. Park Police Horsemounted Drill Team and Thursday is the Pennsylvania "Big Jump." A carriage obstacle race on Friday and Saturday's Grand Prix de Penn National round out the week.

The Pennsylvania National Horse Show benefits the Kiwanis Youth Foundation, Inc. Reserved seats are available by calling 717/233-1335.

Local equestrians competing at Penn National include: Karen & Martan Kleiner, Mishugina Stables, R4 Lebanon; Melanie Lipensky, Lebanon; Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd A. Miller, Lebanon; Pam Wunderlich, Patty Kent Stables, Lebanon; Elizabeth Ann Bachman, Country Life Farm, R1 Columbia; Virginia S. Ewing, Sleepy Hollow Farm, R2 Columbia; Rick Patt, Symbol Acres Farm, Leola; L.D. Boyd, Symbol Acres, Leola; Nicole Brewer, Speedwell Stables, Lititz; Hollinger Tractor Co., Lititz; Robert & Mary Lou Hess, PAP's Hill, Manheim; Kate Rudy, Millersville; Darlene Trento, Hi-Step Stable, Quarryville; Kathy Garner, Ox Yoke, Reinholds; Beth Schaeffer, Cornwall; Mr. & Mrs. L.D. Boyd, Laranbo Farm, Lancaster; Jean M. Ramsay, Windridge Farm, Lancaster; Susan Wise, Windridge Farm, Lancaster; Odie Adcock, Hideaway Farm, Lancaster; Mark S. Bomberger, Maple Grove Farm, Annville; Meagan Burrichter, Annville; Diane R. Light, Night Watch Farms, R1 Annville.

CALL THIS NUMBER FOR MANURE PUMPS, BEDDING CHOPPERS, TANKERS AND SILAGE CARTS THAT WORK

When you buy manure handling and barn feeding equipment, you want it to work. For a long time. With ease. That's why you'll want to call this number.

Bull-Strong Manure Pumps

In manure pumps, you want heavy construction. Fingertip hydraulic operation. Maneuverability. And fast pumping action. But most of all, you want a pump with a large propeller to "stir up a storm" in your manure pit. In hours instead of days. A pump with the capacity to get all the manure out of your pit. Not just the liquids on the bottom.

Tough-Built Red Bedding Choppers

In bedding choppers, you want a model just right for your operation. PTO. Gas engine. Or electric. And you want spiral-set knives to chop any bedding you have to give the machine. Corn stalks. Moldy hay. Straw. You want the chopper to give you fluffy, liquid-absorbent bedding in your stalls.

Simplicity Manure Tankers

In manure spreader-tankers, you don't want a lot of moving parts to break down. Just a paddle fan like a silo filling blower to force the manure out the pipe over the top against the rear baffle for even coverage on your fields. You want a strong chassis with large dual wheels to get you from pit to field safely.

Easy-Unload Silage Carts

In silage carts, you want more capacity from the same size box. No augers or beaters to take up space and get clogged. You want just a kick-wheel to unload tough silage evenly from either side of the cart. You want to turn the cart on a dime. Ride from your silo to any feed bunk on the farm.

Because you can't afford machines on your farm that don't do the job, you'll want to call this number for manure pumps, bedding choppers, tankers and silage carts that work. We'll give you prices. And we'll give you a demonstration that shows how the equipment works.
