

4-H'ers find excitement

petition were later sold at the Livestock Market.

The 1981 4-H beef sale average for the 19 animals sold was 80.93 cents.

With no break in the action, the lamb show began.

Vickie Holtry was the proud owner of the Champion Market Lamb and her cousin, Carolyn Myers, stepped up beside her to be awarded the Reserve Champion title. Vickie's lamb weighed in at 105 pounds to be sold to North Mountain Butcher, Newville, at $2.30. Laura Watts, Cumberland County agent, remarked, "This has been the highest round-up sale price since 1975."

Fred Potteiger, Carlisle, bought the Reserve Champion Lamb for $1.70 a pound. The Myer's lamb weighed 110 pounds.

Champion pair of Market Lambs was exhibited by Joel Hockenberry. The Country Butcher Shop had their eye on this pair and bought them. Together the paired weighed 185 lbs.

The Lamb Showmanship contest was action packed as the 4-H'ers had to man-handle many of the high-spirited animals.

First in the ring were the senior competitors. As the judge circled the class several times around, pulling, tugging, and looking for dirt he motioned Eric Nace to the top of the class as the Senior Champion Showman of the Lambs.

Vickie Holtry proved her abilities for the second time as she was selected the Intermediate Champion Showman for the day.

Junior Champion Showman, Lynda Scott was smiling from ear to ear when the judge awarded her the championship ribbon.

The sale average for the 1981 Roundup sale was 94.87, which included the Champions, and 19 pairs of lambs.

Bradford homemakers enjoy holiday program

Club in Durell for the fall Homemakers Day of the Bradford County Extension Service.

Morning activities included a welcome by Yvonne Crimbring, chairperson of the Home Economics Advisory Council, followed by a talk by Rita Marberger, manager of Member Services of the Tri-County Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc. She demonstrated making a tiny sled from popsicle sticks for a Christmas decoration and handed out a booklet containing how-to instructions for a Christmas Bazaar.

Ms. Marberger also showed two films, one on electrical safety, and the other, accidents around the home.

Orville Yoder, Bradford County Extension agent, announced the 4-H Building Fund that has begun in memory of Landa Hulslander, Bradford County home economist who died unexpectedly last August.

The afternoon speaker was Dorothy Kinsman, who talked and gave demonstrations on table and home decoration for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Arrangements should be based on a design and a plan of lines for visual movement between points. She demonstrated the triangle, oval, and lower triangular designs with a variety of containers.

"Use your imagination choosing containers," she told the group. "Anything you can pick up or saw off is usually appropriate."

To demonstrate this she made a Thanksgiving arrangement using a loaf of bread as the container filling it with an arrangement of chrysanthemums accented with strands of spaghetti.

Other arrangements were a turkey made of a beet with feathers, a Christmas green arrangement with dried honesty and apples, and others. "Look at nature for ideas," Kinsman concluded. "She can show you better than anyone else."

Cathy Bakalar, Northeast Regional nutritionist, adjourned the meeting. The next Bradford County Homemakers meeting is planned for the spring.
