

? That's A ? Good Question

I am a reader and subscriber of Lancaster Farming with a suggestion: why not publish in box form, scheduled and upcoming meetings in the area for farm-related conferences and educational seminars? Also, would you please tell me the name of the organization who can give me the best information on tobacco growing?

H. Dietz Keller
York, PA

r. Keller,
We are happy to report that we run a schedule of farm events every week and you can find it on either page A10 or A12. This corner is entirely devoted to reporting upcoming farm events, seminars, meetings, and conferences, and we welcome all readers and organizations to notify us of their meetings for inclusion in the calendar.

For tobacco growing information, try John Yocum at 653-4728, who works full time on tobacco research for Penn State University. For a wider scope on the tobacco scene, you may want to write to the Tobacco Institute, 18751 Street, Northwest Washington, D.C. 20006; and for a more local appeal, try your local Extension agents. York's Extension phone number is 757-9657 and Lancaster's is 394-6851.

What is a nest run egg? How do you interpret the information found in your market and auction reports?

Lee and Pat Tarantino
Danielsville

Mr. and Mrs. Tarantino:

According to Vicky Waas, egg marketing specialist at PDA, a nest run egg is an ungraded, shell egg which may be sold to egg grading or packing plants, but not to bakeries, food packing plants or retail stores. Nest run eggs are as the name suggests - eggs right from the nest or cage that have not yet been run through washing nor have been graded. Once they are packaged and graded, eggs are no longer considered "nest run eggs."

To interpret the market information, read the brief explanation which accompanies the
