

Janell is braced by love

association. Ruth says, "We meet once every two months and have speakers come in in various areas of child development. It is very beneficial and hospitals usually notify us of spinabifida births."

She feels the association can be beneficial to families facing the experience they are going through and adds, "We appreciated that others shared with us. Every child is different but you have a lot in common."

Ruth feels the support of other parents is helpful because "you realize you don't have the biggest problem."

Janell has a very pleasant personality which makes her easy to care for. Ruth says, "She has always been a very pleasant child and is content when she's feeling well."

Currently the Conleys are working on one of Janell's biggest problems — a poor appetite. She's a slow eater and wants to be fed, but she's capable of feeding herself. We're working on it," Ruth states.

Other potential problems which Janell faces in the immediate future are bladder infections or respiratory infections.

Furthermore, Ruth notes, "She will never have normal bladder and bowel control, and will always need some sort of assistance." Intermittent catheterization is the most common solution to this problem.

Part of Janell's ongoing therapy involves strengthening her arm muscles to make walking easier. Exercises are part of her daily routine, and Amos often works with her on some of the exercises to build up her strength.

With the numerous trips to the hospitals, Ruth also expresses appreciation to the strong family support she has had from close relatives. The other children often play with cousins when hospital visits are necessary.

Janell's cheerful outlook could be an inspiration to all, but it is the mere fact of her being here that provides the inspiration.

Ruth says simply, "I think God did a lot for her. We attribute her healing to that."
