WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will establish a demonstration project that will convert about 4 million bushels of low quality corn owned by USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation into fuel grade alcohol.

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said the project will investigate new market outlets for CCC-owned corn that might otherwise spoil.

"Converting low-quality corn into fuel grade alcohol would provide a market outlet to conserve CCC's assets in an acceptable manner," Block said.

The Kansas City Commodity Office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will issue an announcement inviting participation in the project.

Those interested in the project should write the Kansas City ASCS Commodity Office, P.O. Box 8510, Kansas City, Mo., 64114, or call (816) 926-6406.
