PFA

reaches all-time high

CAMP HILL — Keith Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, has announced that 1982 membership in the voluntary, general farm organization has reached an all-time high of 23,389 farm families. "Membership strength and continued membership growth is the backbone of our organization, the Lackawanna County farm leader said. For over 30 years PFA has provided a voice of authority for farmers in public affairs because of the commitment of its members.

This year with high interest rates, uneven farm prices and increased production costs the challenges facing agriculture and our organization appear to be greater than ever before," Eckel said. "That's why this year's membership gain is so important. It demonstrates the trust and confidence our members have in agriculture's future."

In addition to representing the interests of its family members in public affairs activities, PFA also provides them with information and farm-related services. PFA is a grassroots organization comprised of 54 local county units. It is also an affiliate of the American Farm Bureau Federation.
