Matron of Maplevale

She is hostess for the area Strawberry Festival held annually in June at Maplevale where the local dairy association has served as many as 2700 people strawberries and ice cream in one day. Though she is the first to admit that she is behind in her dairy breeding genetics, fellow state Guernsey breeders, who comprise the second largest state for numbers of registrations and transfers of Guernsey cattle, have considerable faith in her business abilities. In 1980 they elected Janet as their national director to the Board of the American Guernsey Cattle Club. She is the first woman ever to serve on that Board.

Janet has worked hard to keep her family and business on the top side. When asked what new challenge she plans to tackle next, she chuckles, "I'm not sure. Maybe the kids will let me work for them sometime."

honor students. The oldest son, Jeff has returned following graduation from Penn State to now manage the family farm. Three more are still in college pursuing dairy and business careers, and the fifth is in high school. Though Janet does not expect them all to return to the operation at this time, they all own cattle under Maplevale Associates. The store and farm are a single proprietorship with Janet as the sole owner.

Finding the need for outside diversion from the pressures of family and business following Gene's death, Janet turned her energies to where she felt she could contribute her talents. She has served on the Brookville School Board since 1972 and is presently its chairman. She is active in the Pa. Guernsey Breeders' Association and has served as state youth chairman since 1966.
