

More winners emerge from State 4-H Days

Maurice Kramer, state 4-H director, recognized Edith Hemminger, of Newville, Lori Davidson, of Shippensburg, and Karen Miller of Mechanicsburg, as the highest scoring Horticulture Judging Team at 4-H State Achievement Days held at Penn State University.

In the dairy bowl contest held at State Achievement Days at the Penn State Campus, Berks County 4-H members captured first place. From left are: Scott Troutman, R1 Myerstown; Connie Ohlinger, R1 Mohrsville; Carol Dreisbach, R3 Hamburg; and William Leshner, R1 Bernville. The team is now eligible to compete in the National 4-H Dairy Bowl Contest to be held in conjunction with the North American Dairy Show at Louisville, Kentucky in the fall. Coaches for the team were Ken Fabian, Helen Seidel, and Bill Zollers.

Adams County 4-H members were first place winners in the Demonstration Contest. From left, 4-H agent Darlene Resh congratulates Angel Dunchack, Littlestown and Mitchel Reaver, Littlestown. Both did demonstrations in the "general" category. Over 500 4-H members from throughout the Commonwealth took part in the various demonstration events.

In a grilling, day-long dress revue competition, eight 4-H sewing project outfits got the judges' nod as the most worthy from over 30 entries. From left are Tina Ott, Westmoreland County; Heather Johnston,

Washington County; Jennifer Phillips, Stefanie Schaich and Judy Weaver, all of Lancaster County; Reva Meiser, Snyder County; Mary Lou Hoodak, Sullivan County; and Deanne Myers, Lancaster County.

Lancaster County 4-H members were first place winners in the Vegetable Judging Contest held at State 4-H Achievement Days.

From left are: Maurice Kramer, 4-H program director; Debra Martin; Rebecca Rorabaugh; Ray Wallace; and Robert Walbrecht.