Royal Haven Farm, owned by Lynn and Bonnie Miller, recently hosted a group of Master Farmers touring Bradford County. Joining the Holstein breeders is Bradford County Dairy Princess Valerie Moon.

Master farmers tour Bradford Co.

TOWANDA — Bradford County was honored to host the annual Master Farmer Picnic, Saturday, August 7. Seventy Master Farmers and wives from Pennsylvania and Maryland arrived early in the morning at the American Legion Home in Towanda to begin the day-long outing.

A tour by bus included the farms of former Bradford County Master farmers, Milford Kinsman and Richard Packard, both of East Troy. Each has a family dairy operation with outstanding registered Holstein herds.

A chicken barbecue was served to the crowd at the county part on Mt. Pisgah. Ted Keir, an Athens high school science teacher, an expert on local Indian lore, outlined the history of the Indians in the Bradford County area. He was delighted to meet Everett Weiser of Adams County, one of the guests whose ancestor, Conrad Weiser, was a missionary to the Indians in the 1700s, and passed through the Bradford County area.

During the afternoon the group was bused to the Royal Haven

Farm in French Asylum. Owners Lynn and Bonnie Miller breed and raise registered Holsteins, two of which made All-American in 1972 and 1978. They also enjoy success with embryo transplants from their excellent cows.

The Farmers also toured the famous French Asylum estate where the French Queen was supposed to have fled for safety during the French Revolution.

Dinner and entertainment in the evening at the Towanda Legion Home completed the day.

The committee of Bradford County former Master Farmers were Milford Kinsman, chairman, Alfred Durand, secretary and treasurer, Orton Mattocks, and Richard Packard, assisted by Orville Yoder, Bradford County Extension Agent. The committee was fulfilling a dream of the late John Brackman of Canton, a former Master Farmer, who wanted other Master Farmers to visit Bradford County. Paul Brackman, a son, represented his father at the affair. — JB
