

New hog operation

working with them more individually.

"Among the eight groups of hogs in the grower-finishing rooms, feed will be dropped in from four to eight times a day.

"This system is being used in Europe and the more frequent feeding of smaller amounts should increase feed conversion from three to five-tenths."

The first pigs are scheduled to be born in January. Finishing will begin in March and the first market hogs sold off about June. When fully operational, 15,000 or more hogs will be marketed to packers annually.

The size of the operation and its supporting facilities will provide a diversity of merchandising possibilities, in addition to the market hogs. Ventilation is designed for 20 percent over capacity, along with wells and other facilities.

Eventually, breeding stock, bred gilts, and excess feeders will be sold off. Also, there could be a contract setup to help young operators with facilities get started.

"I consider this a unique opportunity that has been given me," Loy said.

"If I can help someone else get started, it would be a way of repaying."

And Phillips adds his sentiments.

"It has been a long time in construction and coming," he said.

"But it should be worthwhile when we start marketing pigs worldwide."

September report confirms record corn crop

UNIVERSITY PARK — The first estimate of the 1982 corn crop, released in August, projected a record crop of 8.32 billion bushels. H. Louis Moore, Penn State Extension agricultural economist said that many analysts were surprised that the figure was projected that high.

The second estimate released on Sept. 10 left the estimate unchanged at 8.32 billion bushels. There was surprise that the estimate wasn't higher since growing conditions seemed to improve during August through most of the corn producing states.

Subsequent reports before completion of harvest may push the estimate higher. Moore said that in seven of the last ten years the final harvest exceeded the crop estimate made in August.

Corn supplies will be even more burdensome than earlier expected with another large crop. The pressures of finding storage and markets at harvest will make this an unpleasant harvest season for most corn growers. Prices have been down and are likely to continue at depressed levels through the harvest season.

The price pressures of a bumper harvest have been even more severe considering the sharp increase in carryover supplies and the drop in exports. Exports in the marketing year ending Sept. 30 will probably not exceed 2 billion bushels, down nearly 15 percent from last year. The carryover of corn when the marketing year begins on October 1 will be about 2 billion bushels.

Unless domestic use and exports increase substantially in the months ahead, the carryover of corn could be a record 2.8 billion bushels on Sept. 30, 1982 — the equivalent of the total crop produced in 1955.

Corn production has grown rapidly in the last two decades. The increased production has not come from bringing substantially more acres under cultivation but from sharp increases in yield per acre. The yield per acre in 1982 may exceed 114 bushels compared to less than 60 bushels per acre on the national average in the early 1960's.

Though some price recovery may occur after harvest, the burdensome carryover of corn may keep downward pressure on price at least until planting time next year, Moore reports.

Results of egg referendum likely Oct. 15

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The last day to vote in the American Egg Board referendum was Monday, and now comes the task of tallying the votes.

Conner Kennett, director of USDA's poultry division, projects the final results of the behind-closed-doors count will be made public sometime around Oct. 15.

"The fellows are locked in next door counting and verifying the ballots now," he reports, from his Washington D.C. office.

The reason for the lengthy wait between the final vote and the outcome announcement is due to the need to verify each ballot with each eligible farm, he explains. These results are then printed out by computer, listing each state's vote.

Archery deer season

opens today

HARRISBURG — The first of Pennsylvania's 1982-83 big game hunting seasons gets underway today as archers begin hunting whitetail deer.

Almost one fourth of the nation's archery hunters purchase licenses in Pennsylvania. Last year, a record 277,677 archery licenses were sold, an increase of about 10,000 over the preceding year.

During the 1981-82 seasons, archers reported harvesting a record 6,070 Pennsylvania deer, and the Keystone state again has a large herd of whitetails this year.

There will be 24 hunting days during the regular statewide archery deer season which closes Friday, Oct. 29. An extended four-day season will run from Dec. 15-18. Hunting hours are from one half hour before sunrise until sunset. Sunday hunting is prohibited.

Use of bow and arrow is also permitted during the regular antlered and antlerless seasons in November and December.

Archers may take one deer of either sex, regardless of size, during the October season. If a deer is tagged during the archery season, the hunter is not permitted to take another whitetail during the regular gunning season.

In addition to a regular resident or nonresident hunting license, an archery license is required to hunt deer with bow and arrow during the archery seasons. Archery licenses are available at $2.20 each from county treasurers, all issuing agents, or by mail from the Pennsylvania Game Commission, License Section, P.O. Box 1567, Harrisburg, PA 17105-1567.

Archers are reminded by the Game Commission that mechanical bow releases are now lawful to use, but arrows must be of cutting-edge broadhead design for big game and turkey. Deer must be tagged immediately, and the big game report card mailed to the Game Commission within five days after harvest.
