

Woodside Farms sweep Shorthorn championships

Woodside Farms of R3 Waynesburg in Green County, exhibited the grand champion Shorthorn bull and heifer in the open Shorthorn classes. "Woodside Major Duke 2nd," a junior calf was also the show's bull calf champion. "Woodside Margo Rose 2nd," was a spring-after-March calf. Shown from left, are son Brett Eisiminger, Bradley Eisiminger, and Corky Johnston.

FARM SHOW — Woodside Major Duke 2nd, a junior calf, was named the grand champion Shorthorn bull in the open breeding class, here, Wednesday afternoon.

The bull, owned by Woodside Farms of R2 Waynesburg in Greene County, was also named the show's bull calf champion.

Duke was sired by JAF Major Duke 78 out of Woodside Cynthia Rose.

Woodside Farms also exhibited the grand champion female, Woodside Margo Rose 2nd, a spring-after-March calf that previously had won the calf championship, and the reserve champion female, Woodside Cynthia Rose 8th, a late spring yearling.

Rose 2nd is sired by JAF Major Duke 78 out of Margo Rose.

Another Woodside Farm entry, Woodside Wachess Queen, a Sept.-Oct. heifer, was the show's reserve calf champion.

The reserve grand champion bull, Mapleview Nine Star, a senior calf, was exhibited by Joan Peoples of R2 Volant in Lawrence County.

The top three winner in each Shorthorn class follows:
