

Barn feeder handles silage or grain

VERNON, N.Y. — Uebler Manufacturing has announced a new line of stall barn feeding machines that offer unmatched versatility for feeding haylage, corn silage or high moisture corn.

Offered in three sizes, the Uebler Model 808, 810 and 812 are available with either quiet-running Honda gas engines or battery-powered drive units. All three units feature forage-box type unloading with a 12" discharge auger as standard equipment. A simple, 30-second, 4-step, "2-in-1" conversion (Pat. Pend.) converts the silage machine to a grain feeding machine that feeds either high moisture shelled corn or high moisture ground ear corn rations.

When equipped with an optional electronic weight computer each of the three models can dispense exact amounts of feed which enables operators to save feed by eliminating over-feeding, or increase milk production from cows that are being under-fed.

Standard features include safe, convenient variable speed hydrostatic drive for forward/reverse with automatic braking, simple controls and automotive-type steering for ease of handling and operation, adjustable riding platform with adjustable, removeable seat, roller chain drive, heavy-duty wheels, and structural steel square tubing frame with 11 ga. steel sides.

Standard capacities for the 3 models are: Model 808 — 31 cu. ft.; Model 810 — 36 cu. ft.; Model 812 —

55 cu. ft. Optional side extensions are available as walk-behind units which reduces the operational room required.

Full details and color literature are available from Uebler Manufacturing, Box C, Vernon, N.Y. 13476.

New line of Uebler barn feeders come in three models with capacities ranging from 31 to 55 cu. ft.
