Food Essay

Contest Sponsored

LANCASTER — "Food: America's Growth Industry" is the theme of a nationwide essay contest sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension Service.

Participants, who must be between 13 and 18 as of the Feb. 1 deadline, may discuss any phase of the American food industry including production, processing, distribution, and marketing. Essays are limited to 500 words.

The contest is designed to encourage creative writing and make young people more aware of the vital relationship between American agriculture and the well-being of the nation's people. Without consumers, farmers would be out of business. Without farmers, consumers couldn't survive.

Agriculture is the nation's largest employer, with 22 percent of the labor force working in some phase of the industry. American agriculture is also the world's largest commercial industry, with assets exceeding one trillion dollars.

Additional information on the agricultural industry is available from county Extension offices, Soil Conservation Service, and ASCS offices; agricultural organizations and commodity groups; libraries and teachers; health departments; food processors and distributors.

Prizes will be awarded to first place winners in three age categories: 13-14, 15-16, and 17-18. Community winners will receive certificates. Winners at the county level will win medals. State winners will be awarded plaques. National winners will win trips to Washington, D.C., where they'll be awarded prizes and trophies by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Additional information about the contest is available from county offices of the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service in Newark, Dover, and Georgetown. Entries must be submitted to a county Extension office by February 1, 1984.
